I collect Fiesta ware. I go with a friend twice a year to the Ottawa Antique & Vintage Market to see what catches my eye. This piece is pretty and functional. I have it on my nightstand as a jewellery holder. ottawaantiqueandvintagemarket.ca.

This pendant light has a transitional feel, and I really like the interplay of the fabric and crystals. Available through Decorating Den Interiors, CPI Team, 613-599-5564.

This striking fabric from Maxwell Fabrics is so beautiful! I don't know where I'll use it, but I know I will. Available through Decorating Den Interiors, CPI Team, 613-599-5564.

She began her career as a graphic designer, but Natalie Cox has always had a passion for decorating. "I was one of those kids who redesigned their room a few times a year," she says. She spent years as a gifted amateur, helping her friends beautify their homes, before finally taking the plunge eight years ago and retraining as an interior decorator. A detailed interview and her intuitive sense of style allow her to glean her clients' decor desires.

I tend to buy plants when I visit Flowers Talk Tivoli, but once in a while, I'll pick up some cut flowers or branches – like a bouquet of spring lilacs. 282 Richmond Rd., 613-729-6911.

I really love old jugs. This one is great for holding large floral arrangements. I picked it up at Gendron Antiques in Stittsville [closing in November]. They know me well. 1145 Carp Rd., 613-831-2186.

Soy candles from Terra 20 last forever, and you can reuse the enamel tin. 2685 Iris St. and 1304 Wellington St. W., 613-837-7220.

Hello Yellow in Almonte is the cutest store! They carry pretty calendars from Rifle Paper Co, a stationery company from the United States. 72 Mill St., Almonte, 613-461-6233.
